DIALOGUE

Woman: Oh no! This is horrible! My whole day is ruined!

Man: What? What happened?

Woman: The new Star Wars Death Star LEGO set is sold out!

Man: Pull yourself together. Why is that such a big deal?

Woman: Are you kidding me? We clearly don't see eye to eye on this. What am I supposed to do now?

Man: You're weird.

Woman: Sorry.

Man: No, that was a compliment.

NEW EXPRESSIONS!

Sold out

In retail, it means that a certain item is not in stock, because all units have been sold. In events, it means that all tickets and accommodations are no longer available, having been sold completely.

I wanted to get tickets for Ed Sheeran's concert, but it's sold out.
They couldn't get the toy because it was sold out.

Pull oneself together

An expression that means to regain control of one's emotions. To get control of emotions or actions after being upset; to calm oneself down.

She was angry with him, but she managed to pull herself together before talking to him.

I need to pull myself together if I'm to finish this task by tomorrow.

Big deal

Words that describe something considered important, a thing, or a person.

I didn't know he was such a big deal.

She tries not to make a big deal out of small problems.

See eye to eye

An idiom that means to have similar views or attitudes to something; be in full agreement.

They don't see eye to eye on the contract.

I'm glad we see eye to eye on this.
